Consulting Services

Politics in Latin America is fast-moving and often unpredictable. My objective is to support clients in understanding the implications of unfolding events, helping them make informed decisions in complex and dynamic environments. With over fifteen years of academic and professional experience, I specialise in the politics of Latin America, with particular expertise in Mexico, Brazil, and Argentina. I offer tailored consultation services to media outlets, public institutions, and private organisations, drawing on the latest research to deliver timely, evidence-based insights into political developments across the region.

In addition to one-off consultations and independent reports, I also offer the option of a retainer agreement. In all cases, my services ensure that your organisation receives priority access to my expertise—enabling timely and strategic support when it is most critical. Retainer services are particularly well suited to clients requiring ongoing analysis, regular consultation, or rapid responses to emerging issues.

About Me I am currently a British Academy Postdoctoral Fellow in the Department of Politics and International Relations at the University of Oxford. I have previously held academic posts at the Oxford School of Global and Area Studies, the University of Manchester, and the University of Notre Dame. My research focuses on democratic institutions, political regimes, and subnational governance in Latin America. My work has appeared in leading international journals including Perspectives on Politics, Democratization, Alternatives, and Agenda Política.
